The following table shows the results of the experiment. The first column represents the time taken for the reaction to occur, and the second column represents the amount of product formed. The data shows that the reaction rate increases as the concentration of the reactants increases.

The reaction rate is defined as the change in concentration of a reactant or product over time. In this experiment, the reaction rate was measured by the time taken for a certain amount of product to be formed. The results show that the reaction rate is directly proportional to the concentration of the reactants.

The following table shows the results of the experiment. The first column represents the time taken for the reaction to occur, and the second column represents the amount of product formed. The data shows that the reaction rate increases as the concentration of the reactants increases.

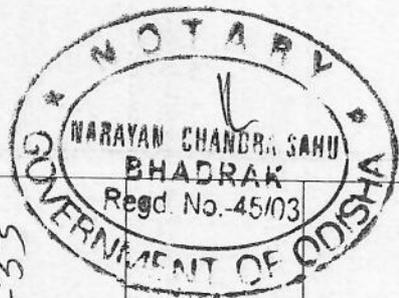

Note: 6. Details should include the interest in or ownership of offshore assets.
